FOREWORD

Following our customary practice, we have asked the Honorable Alexander M. Fromme, of Hoxie, President of the Bar Association of the State of Kansas, and whose photograph is shown on the cover, to prepare an article on a subject of his own choosing for publication in this issue of the BULLETIN. He has done so, and we feel that his article on "Public Relations And The Lawyer" will be of particular interest to attorneys throughout the state.

Mr. Fromme is a native Kansan and was graduated from Sheridan Community High School at Hoxie. He received both his A. B. and LL. B. degrees from Washburn University, and was admitted to the practice of law in 1939, immediately following which he hung out his shingle in Hoxie. In 1949 he was joined by his brother, Joseph W. Fromme, and this association has continued to the present time.

He was elected and served as county attorney of Sheridan County from 1941 to 1948. He has been active in public and civic activities, including Red Cross, Boy Scouts and the Sheridan County Tuberculosis Association. From 1943 to date he has served as a member of the Advisory Board for Registrants in Sheridan County, under the Selective Service Act. He is a member of and past president of the Rotary Club at Hoxie.

Mrs. Fromme is the former Ruth Marie Kesler of Overbrook, and they are the parents of six children. Their oldest son, David, has just completed a year of study in Holland as an exchange student at The Netherlands College, Nijenrode, Breukelen, Holland.

Mr. Fromme's interest in Bar Association activities dates from 1939, while a student in law school, at which time he authored an article on the question of sufficiency of appeals from condemnation awards which was published in the February 1939 issue of the Journal of the Bar Association of Kansas.

He is a member of the Northwest Kansas Bar Association, the American Bar Association, and has served on the Executive Council of the Bar Association of the State of Kansas since 1949. He was elected and served the association as vice-president in 1959, president-elect in 1960, and became president this year.

This issue of the BULLETIN also contains summarized tables showing the volume of work in the Supreme Court, the district courts, probate courts, county courts and city courts of the state for the year ending June 30, 1961.

Public Relations and the Lawyer

BY ALEXANDER M. FROMME

President of the Bar Association of the State of Kansas

Much thought and effort has been put forth concerning public relations by various local, state and national associations. The views expressed herein are not expressed for the purpose of detracting from the efforts of those organizations to maintain an effective program of public relations. However, good public relations must begin with the individual. No organized program of public relations for any profession can be successful unless the relationship between the individual members of that profession and the individual members of the public which they serve is satisfactory and rewarding to the public.

The legal profession is no exception. Although steeped in tradition and one of the most honorable professions it is a profession which arose from society's need for a particular service connected with the administration of justice and legal rights of the individual citizen. The lawyer's function in our social order, in addition to earning his livelihood, is to help administer justice by rendering service to persons who need the same for the protection of their legal rights, and to champion a legal system and a philosophy of government under which that is possible. Doing that job properly is the first half of a public relations program, and indeed, if the individual lawyer is not doing his best to administer justice and maintain proper relations with his clients it will do us no good for the public to understand us better.

The Bar Association of the State of Kansas has an active public relations committee. During the past years it has considered many programs and instituted many practices for the purpose of bringing about better public relations for the legal profession. Some of these programs which have been considered, studied, and evaluated by this committee will be set out in order that you may discern the scope of the work of this committee.

The "News Media Bar Award" has been presented by the association for several years to the journalist or news commentator in the state who has by his editorials or published statements advanced the interests of the legal profession in this state. The certificate is presented at the mid-year meeting of the association and is accompanied with a cash award of $250.00.

The "Client's Security Fund" which has been initiated by associations in other states has been carefully considered by the committee, but no definite action has been taken toward establishing the same because of various considerations having to do with financing the fund, as well as those having to do with the basic reasons for establishing the same. This fund has been set up in various state associations to cover defalcations, should any occur, on the part of any attorney practicing law in these respective states. This would be a fund established and financed by the membership, yet would have to cover defalcations of members and nonmembers alike if it were to accomplish any useful purpose. A program to establish such a fund has not been attempted in Kansas.

The "Attorney's Liability Insurance," which may be referred to as lawyers' malpractice insurance, has been studied and recommended by the committee to all members. The purchase of such insurance by the lawyers will protect clients from errors that on occasion do occur and when the lawyer has this protection the opportunities for unfortunate incidents involving the public relations of our profession are materially reduced. The association has strongly urged and encouraged the individual members to purchase this insurance and has authorized insurance companies to circularize the membership in an effort to sell them on the need as well as the benefits to the profession.

A "State-wide Speakers Bureau" has been set up by the committee. They have secured the names of available members who will talk to groups on subjects involving the administration of justice, philosophy of our government, and special legal topics. In such a program the members can be encouraged to take a more active part in the affairs of the lay community as well as those of their association. This results in a better understanding of the profession by the public.

"Institutional Advertising" has been recommended by the committee and each year a portion of our association budget is allotted to institutional advertising insofar as the State Association is concerned. Local bar associations have been urged to make use of similar programs in their own communities for the purpose of informing the public and advancing the cause of better relations between the profession and the public.

The "Jury Handbook" has been studied and after considerable work on the part of the committee and members of the association the same has been made available and is being used in certain counties. It is felt that the use of the handbook will spread to other counties and contribute to the administration of justice in this state by giving the juror a better perspective and understanding of the processes of justice.

"Pamphlets" have been prepared and racks for proper display of the pamphlets have been made available. The subjects chosen have appeal to the lay public and may assist in helping those who avail themselves of the pamphlets to recognize certain problems giving rise to the need for legal assistance before it is too late to prevent costly mistakes.

The "Law Day, U. S. A." which was originally instituted by the American Bar Association has been observed and promoted by the committee. For several years it has been the practice to encourage local associations to actively participate each year by sponsoring programs and press releases. A better public understanding of the value of our system of jurisprudence which dignifies the individual man is thereby obtained.

These programs are mentioned for the purpose of pointing out that the organized bar is a working organization. Many ideas for promoting public relations have been considered by the committee. Some ideas have been discarded. Some ideas have been tried with success. Some have been tried but without success. The committee's work begins with sifting the grain from the chaff. The chaff must be discarded. The good seed must be used to plant a public relations program which will grow and bring forth fruit.

However, good public relations must begin with the individual lawyer. No organized program of public relations can be successful unless the relationship between the individual members of the profession and the individual members of the public which they serve is satisfactory and of a nature to be complimentary to the profession. Every lawyer owes a duty to himself, to his clients, and to his profession to conduct his practice with integrity, honor and courtesy. The impact of his personality and the devotion to his client's cause as displayed by the individual lawyer will determine the impression which the client will retain after the work has been completed. Regardless of the public relations program being carried on by the bar association, the client will measure all lawyers by the image he retains of the lawyers he has come to know personally. Each lawyer is his own public relations agent.

There are two areas in which the individual lawyer fails to promote himself to advantage in the eyes of his clients. The first of these has to do with fees charged. The second has to do with attitudes displayed.

Many of the criticisms directed at lawyers relate to the charges he makes for the services he renders. Too often in these cases the attorney has failed to discuss the fee, or the basis upon which he will make a charge for his services, prior to undertaking the work. When the work has been completed the charge for services rendered, although entirely reasonable, appears large to the client because he was not advised in advance of the amount of the work or the basis upon which the charges are to be made. The lawyer must keep in mind that many of his clients come to him with litigation or office work of a nature which is common to the lawyer. He has handled many such cases. He has a standard charge for such services based upon his experience with such cases and the "Fee Schedule." He is pressed for time and by reason of the fact that his time is valuable and the case is a usual case, or the office work is the "run of the mill" type, he fails to see any need for taking the time to explain the basis for his charges. As often as not there is no mention of fee until the work is completed. The client, on the other hand, has never been in a lawyer's office before. He has never had this legal problem before and will never have it again. He has heard stories of the charges which lawyers make, and probably is worrying about the final charge. He is worried about the problem yet he does not ask about the charges. He has no idea of the amount of time the lawyer must take to handle the matter, and does not know what other expenses he may incur. In such cases it makes very little difference what the amount of the charge may be, for any charge is too much unless he has an idea in advance as to how the fee is to be set. A lawyer cannot have the trust and confidence of his client, if that client continues to worry about the charges he is going to have to pay for that service.

It may appear strange that most individuals know the price of a sack of potatoes. They know what a shirt or a suit of clothes may cost. They can tell you what it costs for a filling in one of their teeth, and they do not hesitate to ask their doctor what it costs to have an appendix removed. They know that the plumber will charge them $4.00 per hour, and the man who excavates their basement for the new house will charge them $25.00 per hour. But—they haven't the slightest idea what their lawyer is going to charge, and they are afraid of offending him by asking about his fee. If such is the case then the lawyer must advise them in advance of the basis for the charges or fee.

From the standpoint of public relations it is an important part of every lawyer's practice to advise the client in advance of undertaking the work. If you do that you immediately create the image of fairness in the mind of your client. You keep him from worrying about the basis for the charges he is to incur. If fees are discussed in advance, you are merely explaining the basis for your charges. But—if you wait until after the work is completed, then any explanation as to the fee is taken by your client as an attempt to defend the fee. You are placed on the defensive, and regardless of the reasonableness of the charges you will not always be successful in convincing your client that you have earned every penny of it and more.

It would be well for every lawyer to follow a suggestion which was made by the Florida Bar Association. They initiated the practice of distributing a small plaque to be hung in every law office which reads as follows:

"To All My Clients—

"I invite you to discuss frankly with me any questions regarding my services or my fees. The best legal service is based on a friendly mutual understanding between lawyer and client."

Such a reminder would not only inform our clients, but would also remind us that we should not undertake a matter for a client without at least discussing the basis upon which our charges will be made.

There appears to have grown up in the profession a distaste for law office economics, management and proper attention to public relations. Each lawyer should know what portion of the gross income dollar it will take to pay the office expenses. His clients should be advised that out of the $15.00 per hour charge $5.00 goes for office expense and only $10.00 remains before taxes to support and educate his family. Or if the charge is $10.00 per hour then $4.00 goes for office expense and only $6.00 remains before taxes. A frank discussion with your prospective client of fees to be charged for your work will do much to engender good will and mutual understanding between you and your client. This will result in turn in a more favorable attitude on the part of the public toward the profession.

The second area in which the individual lawyer has failed to promote himself in the eyes of his clients has to do with the attitudes displayed by him in his practice. We are constantly under pressure from our clients to obtain their legal rights. The client feels that his case is just. In event his cause is not successful in the court, or is only partially successful from his standpoint, he immediately looks around for someone on whom to place the blame for this miscarriage of justice. Since the lawyer he hired has worked diligently in representing him in this cause, he naturally expects that the lawyer will continue on his side of the matter when he begins castigating the witnesses who appeared on the other side, and when he questions the integrity of the opposing lawyers and of the judge and jury who decided the case.

When a case is lost, or only partially won, and the lawyer has done all he could to properly present that case, there is no one on whom he can shift the burden of blame. If one side is successful the other side must lose. As in the field of competitive sports if one side wins the other side loses. Every lawyer must be prepared to be a good loser, for it is essential to him and to his profession. The client's case cannot be benefited in any way by criticizing the opposing lawyer or the judge. To do so will only degrade the person who attempts to justify the failure of his client's case by criticizing others. Your client may expect you to side with him in charges against the opposing counsel and the court, but when you do so you must remember two things. First, the client will know that any criticism you make of opposing counsel or of the judge is pure rationalization on your part. This is true even though you are merely echoing what the client has already stated or inferred in your presence. Secondly, you may be able to lower the standing of the opposing lawyer or the judge by your disparaging statements, but in doing so you encourage your client to pass those statements on to others. Public opinion is molded in such a manner. When you lower the opinion of the public toward a member of the profession you are degrading your own profession in the eyes of the public. Good public relations cannot be obtained for any profession if the members themselves are guilty of disparaging others in that same profession. Think twice before you agree vocally with your client on such matters. In such case silence can be golden.

In the area of public relations the individual lawyer needs a strong professional association. The press of his practice prevents him from standing back and obtaining an objective view of himself and of his profession. The system of local, state and national associations which we have operates as a communications system through which ideas and programs may be channeled back and forth. The associations are working hard to produce a strong public relations program, but in the final analysis the individual lawyer is his own public relations agent. How well he performs his half of the public relations work will in a large measure determine how effective the association's public relations program will be.
